Understanding Prepositions: The Foundation of Location and Time

Before diving into the worksheets, let's refresh our understanding of prepositions. Prepositions are words that show the relationship between a noun or pronoun and another word in the sentence. They essentially tell us where, when, or how something is related to something else. Think of them as the glue that holds sentences together, adding crucial context and clarity.

For example, consider these sentences:

The book is on the table. (on shows the location of the book relative to the table)

The cat jumped over the fence. (over shows the direction of the cat's movement)

We went to the park after school. (after shows the time relationship between going to the park and school)
