Understanding the Basics: What is a Subject?

Before we tackle complete and simple subjects, let's get the fundamental concept straight: the subject of a sentence is the person, place, thing, or idea that performs the action of the verb or is being described by the verb. Think of it as the "who" or "what" of the sentence.

For example:

The dog barked loudly. (Dog is the subject performing the action of barking)
The sun shines brightly. (Sun is the subject being described as shining)
Maria sings beautifully. (Maria is the subject performing the action of singing)

Simple Subjects: Getting to the Core

The simple subject is the main noun or pronoun that performs the action or is being described. It's the core of the subject, stripped down to its essentials. To find the simple subject, ask yourself "Who?" or "What?" is performing the action or being described.

Let's look at some examples:

The fluffy cat slept soundly on the windowsill. (Simple subject: cat)
My energetic friend ran a marathon. (Simple subject: friend)
He laughed heartily. (Simple subject: He)

Complete Subjects: The Full Picture

The complete subject includes the simple subject and all its modifiers. Modifiers are words or phrases that describe or add information about the simple subject. They paint a more complete picture of the subject.

Consider these examples:

The fluffy cat slept soundly on the windowsill. (Complete subject: The fluffy cat)

My energetic friend ran a marathon. (Complete subject: My energetic friend)
He laughed heartily. (Complete subject: He) (Note: In this case, the simple and complete subjects are the same because there are no modifiers.)
